COSTE LANDS SHIP IN N. Y. IN 37 HOURS

Crowd Fights Police On Field As Frenchmen Complete Epochal Journey.

N. Y. RECEPTION TODAY

Paris Goes Wild As Coste Broadcasts Greetings.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Weather permitting, Captain Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte will hop off from Curtiss airport in their sesquiplane at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning for Dallas, Tex.

Coste, refreshed after a good night's sleep, made this announcement today as he and Bellonte slicked themselves up for one of New York's official receptions to international air heroes, which will include a parade up Broadway to the city hall late this afternoon.

A prize of $25,000 has been offered to Coste and Bellonte by Colonel W. A. Easterwood, Dallas sportsman, who is now in Europe, for the first flight from Paris to Dallas, with New York as an intermediary stopping point.

"Dallas is the real objective of our flight," said Coste. "We have to leave New York within 72 hours after our arrival in order to win the prize."

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Captain Dieudonne Coste, often called the "Lindbergh of France," and his co-pilot, Maurice Bellonte, today modestly accepted their homage of the world in recognition of their historical achievement in making the first direct non-stop flight from Paris to New York.

They made the special journey in 37 hours and 19 minutes, establishing magnificently over the elements which sent Nungesser and Coli, their fellow countrymen, and eight others who beguiled the westward argosy across the Atlantic to their death.

President Hoover, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Rear Admiral Byrd, the rulers of nations all over the globe and distinguished persons in all lines of endeavor, hailed the feat as one of the most remarkable in the annals of aviation. More than ever, Coste stands forth among aviators as a Beau Ideal—a perfect combination of dash and prudence, courage and fortitude, experience and technical skill.

"A great flight, admirably executed," was the enthusiastic comment of Col. Lindbergh as he watched Coste's powerful, scarlet-hued plane, the "Question Mark," swoop in from the east through the gathering dusk and come to a perfect landing in the dead center of the field as 10,000 spectators roared a tumultuous welcome.

TRAVEL 4100 MILES

Coste and Bellonte covered 6,500 kilometers, or about 4,100 miles, and when they landed at 7:13 P. M., they had 100 gallons of gasoline left, sufficient for nearly three hours more of flight.

Lindbergh's eastward crossing of the Atlantic, was made in three hours and 50 minutes faster time than Coste and Bellonte negotiated the western flight but, because of the obstacle of severe headwinds the westward jump is generally regarded as the more difficult.

A civic reception by the city of New York was tentatively set by Mayor James J. Walker for 3 o'clock this afternoon. The details of program was held in abeyance, however, until the wishes of Coste and Bellonte were consulted today. The flyers, tired but happy, retired late last night in their suite in the Ritz Towers and did not leave their rooms until late this morning. They were exhausted at the completion of their flight.

PICKED UP BY CROWD

A great cheer growing in volume, swept across the Roosevelt field, as the "Question Mark" love into sight and came to earth after circling the airport several times. The moment Coste and Bellonte raised their heads out of the cockpit and stepped over the fuselage they were picked up on the shoulders of their compatriots and carried to one of the hangars while a small army of blue-coats tried ineffectually to beat back the crowd that had swamped through the police lines

Amid the booming of photographers' flashlights and pant dozens of flares that had been lit, Coste and Bellonte were half carried, half pushed while everybody in

"Peck's Block," Landmark, To Be Sold Under Hammer

"Peck's Block" is going under the hammer.

In case you of the present generation don't grasp the significance of that statement, we'll tell you that "Peck's Block" is a Circleville landmark, close to 75 years old. It's the three-story building, now occupied by Harley Colwell clothier, at the southwest corner of Main and Court-sts

Judge Clarence Curtain, executor of the will of the late Mary Krimmel, and Abernethy & Simkins, attorneys for the executor, announced Wednesday that the building will be offered at public auction "at the door of the courthouse in the city of Circleville on the 6th day of October, 1930, at 2 o'clock p m"

The property, appraised at $34,000, will be offered subject to a lease recently taken by G. C. Murphy & Co., the five -and-ten store Colwell's lease expires in June, 1932.

Disagreement among heirs of the Krimmel estate forced the sale, according to lawyers

Old-timers in and about Circleville have fond memories of "Peck's Block," for the second floor was the favorite dancing spot for the girls and boys of 50 years ago. It was known far and wide as "Peck's Hall."

SHOTTON, WITH LOSING TEAM, IS FAVORITE IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3-There seems to be something about a winner that enrages this town out of all reason and, on the other hand, it apparently can learn to love a loser in a very big way.

Anyhow, one story here today is that the Philadelphia Athletics, champions of the world, are experiencing something of the same situation that confronted them back in 1914 when everybody stayed away from the ballpark very resolutely. Another is that the Phillies, having won 43 out of 130 games for a natty .331, are disposed to go along with Mr. Burt Shotton, under whose auspices this most dubious of records has been sponsored. Ordinarily, one might look for Mr. Shotton to hit the asphalt on the first bounce, particularly in view of the fact that many deemed him to have started the season with a potential first division club.

In this connection, it might also be mentioned that he is laboring in the interests of W. F. Baker, who like Sam Breadon never waits until he sees the whites of their eyes before firing. He has been known to fire without seeing anything except the standing of the clubs.

So his tolerance in the case of Mr. Shotton would be surprising, if it wasn't for the fact that everything about Mr. Shotton is surprising. He is one of the most successful failures known to baseball.

The muggs in the stands are for him and greet his every appearance with the silence of profound respect. His players are for him. So, it seems, is Mr. Baker, although this is largely surmise. He has given no public utterance of his implied approval but this seems to be taken for granted. The idea being that everybody approves of Mr. Shotton, so why not Mr. Baker?

I talked to Shotton himself this morning and he seemed to have every confidence that he would be allowed to go on trying to build up the Phillies next year, which is something like trying to make a vest out of an armhole. The club has two of the hitting leaders of the league in Klein and O'Doul, two good infielders in Whitney and Thevenow and the misfortune of being a good ball club that cannot win. What it happens to be is a very poor ball club that gives an impression to which it isn't at all entitled.

It hits near .300 as a club but does most of its hitting after the ball game is lost beyond recall. It has no pitchers. Two of its infielders are playing on the dime that Mr. Baker gave them as a token of his esteem. The outfield, not defensively impossible, is at least highly improbable. The club, in spite of its punch, is so slow that it hits into more double plays than any other in the major leagues.

However, whatever it is, the club is Mr. Shotton's own and, as such, it is something to be moderately proud of. They gave him nothing to manage three years ago. He has been managing it with intelligence, if not success, ever since. He has made a lot of trades and none of them have been bad. This is the first of two things he has made on behalf of his owner, the other being money. Whatever else they are, the Phillies at least are an interesting outfit.

ANOTHER CASE WHERE KONJOLA "MADE GOOD"

Cleveland Resident Wants Everyone To Know What New Medicine Did For Him.

MR. CHARLES H. JESSUP.

"I commenced taking Konjola about a year ago," said Mr. Charles H. Jessup, 1908 East 69th street, Cleveland. "I was so ill that I had to sit in a chair for I could not breathe lying down. From December to March I was unable to work. Whatever I ate caused me misery. I lost weight and was very weak. I have taken eight bottles of Konjola and today I am sound as a dollar. I can walk ten miles without fatigue. I shall always have Konjola in my home for it certainly proved to be a master-medicine in my case. I am sleeping fine, have regained my lost weight, and my nerves are calm. My work is now a pleasure for I am enjoying the best of health."

The records of Konjola fairly overflow with just such happy endorsements. Once Konjola is put to work, results are prompt and sure. However, it is best that six to eight bottles be taken in average cases.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

CUBS BREAK CINCI JINX

Charlie Root With Alleged Sore Arm Hands Out Three Hits, One a Home Run

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Cubs won and maintained a four-game lead in the National League punch and judy show but considered more important by some folks today were persistant rumors that John J. McGraw is managing the New York Giants for his last season. Friction between the Giants' manager and Charley Stoneham, president of the club, has reached a point where a break is inevitable, according to reports on the baseball rialto.

One fact was pointed out as giving plenty of color to the rumors. That was that McGraw did not accompany the Giants on their recent Western tour. he was not with them yesterday in Philadelphia and no one understands he is to be at their side in Boston today. It was remarked if McGraw intended to remain with the club no business in the world would keep him away from the team for weeks at a time. Those who claim their information about McGraw's final year with the Giants is stronger than a Bermuda onion, broadcast further that Dave Bancroft, who was at the helm when the young men from Broadway climbed so rapidly this summer while McGraw was here, there and yonder, but never with the club, will become the permanent master mind of the outfit.

Charlie Root's brand of hurling pointed the way for the Cubs 8 to 2 crush of the Reds. He allowed only three hits, one a homer by Cuccinello, which was matched with a four-baser by Hartnett of the Bruins.

All Outdoors and Where To Go

(Written exclusively for International News Service by James W. Stuber, secretary of the Outdoor Writers' Association of America.)

COLUMBUS, O.—The need of slackwatering of Ohio streams has been brought forcibly to the attention of the public and to the Conservation Council by the summer drought. Many streams in Ohio, formerly good bass streams, have been nearly dry or stagnant, for weeks.

A series of small dams would have maintained a stage of water and prevented the loss of gamefish as well as unsightly conditions in many stream beds. Slackwater dams would hold the water table, and keep the capilliary attraction Ground that has been over-drained, and streams that have dried up, have drawn away the ground water,—the result, lands have parched, the ground has baked dry, and crops, as well as wild life, have suffered. The soil moisture through the loss of the water table has disappeared in many places Ohio has become chinaized this summer.

A program for building of small dams should interest the farmer and manufacturer as well as the sportsman and conservationists. Dams would not only hold sufficient water in dry seasons, but would hold back water in wet seasons and prevent floods or rush of water after excessive rains. In pioneer days all Ohio streams were slackwatered by nature, through logs and other debris which collected in the streams. These natural dams held the ground water, maintained the underground water-table, and held back water in time of floods releasing it gradually. Flood waters ran clear, streams rose gradually and receded normally. Nature's ways having been upset by civilization, we are now face to face with the problem of going back to a slackwater system. The system of small dams, much as would not back water up on private land, would help to solve the problem.

In 1928 the writer was on a hunting trip in Quebec and Ontario. We camped 21 days in the wilds, of which it rained every day except two. It had rained for 50 days in Ontario and lower Quebec. Canadian streams ran bank full, as high as they would have been in the spring. This was in October. The waters were clear. Little damage was done by the flood. Every ravine in the woods had a rill or brook carrying water to the streams. Pools of water stood everywhere in the forest, held back by branches, logs leaves, and debris. Water found its way gradually to the streams, and the rivers were able to carry it away, without doing serious damage to property.

What if it should rain 50 days in Ohio? What if it should rain 10 days, a normal year? Ohio streams would flood within 48 hours. There would be a sudden rush of water to the streams from everywhere—muddy ugly water. There would be property damage. Ohio streams which could not carry the flood would spread out over adjacent lands. Fish life would be lost through flood. They would be stranded in fields. Ohio, overdrained, her water table lowered and capillary attraction for underground water impaired, faces either flood or drought, from season to season.

This is just what happens in China to cause famine and loss of crops and vegetation. China cut away her timber, and wasted her natural resources. Now she suffers and pays an awful price. Reforestation of the headwaters of Ohio streams would prevent them going dry as they have done this summer. Slackwater dams would save the water resources. The drought has been a severe object lesson.

DEER HUNTING THIS FALL

Where to go for a deer hunt this fall? The Gatineau River country, 70 miles north of Ottawa, Ontario, in Quebec, is one of the best in the Quebec province. The stopping place is Gracefield.

Jerry Grace reports that deer are plentiful in this section with an increasing number of moose. Good guides are available. One is almost sure to get his deer there if he can shoot, and if he understands deer hunting and will listen to the instructions of the guide. A letter to Grace, care Grace's Limited, Gracefield Quebec, will bring the right information. The writer has hunted in this territory and recommends it. He has seen some unusually large deer heads taken out of this country. The license is $25 and two deer are allowed per man.

Reading the dispatches from Texas and Los Angeles recently, it occurs to us that Ma Ferguson and Ma Kennedy might get together for a good cry.

The country is all full of enthusiastic sportsmen who get all their healthful exercise by reading the sport pages.

OHIOAN WINS BALLOON RACE

Akron Pilot Keeps Cup With Journey of 550 Miles From Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—The treasured trophy of the 19th Gordon Bennett International balloon race will remain in the United States and in the possesion of its present holder, Ward T. Van Orman of Akron, the nation's premier balloonist, it appeared today.

Unofficial distance computed by the balloon race committee here showed that Van Orman's craft, Goodyear VIII, had traveled 550 miles from Cleveland, where the race began late Monday, to Canton Junction, Mass., near Boston.

Van Orman landed at Canton Junction at 9:15 o'clock last night, approximately five hours after the Belgica came down on a farm near Adams, Mass., 435 miles from Cleveland.

The third greatest distance, race officials said, was apparently made by the German entry, Barman, which landed at Pittsfield, N. Y., 425 miles away.

Mother Saves Four Tots From Flames

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Four little children are alive today because their mother had the presence of mind to toss them into the arms of a waiting policeman when they were trapped by flames on the second floor of their home.

Mrs. Eleanor Chisholm, 40, the mother, was suffering today from shock and severe cuts on the head as a result of her experience.

When she discovered the flames, while in her bedroom, the mother gathered together her babies and called for aid. Police J. I. Hicks passing by, turned in an alarm, and then stood below the window and directed the mother to throw the children down to him. All landed safely, but Mrs. Chisholm collapsed as a fireman carried her down a ladder.

UNIVERSITY OF DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT IS OPENED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.-A new venture in education blossomed forth Tuesday when the government's school for prohibition agents opened under the auspices of Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of the bureau of prohibition.

Already dubbed the "University of Prohibition Enforcement," the school enrolled 24 agents, two each from the 12 districts the country designated for purposes of enforcing the Volstead law.

The course, designed to teach agents how to obtain evidence, and what kind, and how to present it in court so their cases will "stick," will cover 30 days, and the 24 specially selected students will return to their posts to spread the gospel to their fellow enforcement officers in their respective territories.

The keynote is "make prohibition enforcement popular."

Pursuant to Woodcock's dictum that prohibition agents must not resort to gunplay except under the sternest provocation, the instructors will devote considerable attention to this phase of the new director's enforcement problem.

The latest approved methods in conducting raids, with particular attention to the legal side of them, emphasizing the necessity to obtain warrants beforehand, also is included in the course.

The students will be instructed in Woodcock's policies, among which is that designed to stop the rum supply at the source through the "big fellow" rather than by "frisking" patrons of bootleggers for half pint flasks.

Woodcock has deferred his countrywide trip of inspection of enforcement agencies until the end of the week in order to start his school on the right foot.

His first stop will be at Cincinnati. Before his return he will have gotten a close up of the enforcement set up in each of the 12 districts.

BOYS ADMIT ROBBING STORE

Two Arrested By McCrady, Others Expected To Be Apprehended Soon.

An investigation by Police Officer William McCrady of a robbery Monday at the Cussins & Fearn store, N. Court-st, has resulted in the arrest of two youths and the probable arrest of two others.

The boys held are Charles Russell, E. Ohio-st, and Alfred Smith, Washington-st.

A boy informed McCrady Tuesday that Russell had several pockets filled with knives. McCrady took Russell into custody in the rear of the Cussins & Fearn store and questioned him. Russell admitted being at the store but denied that he had gone into it.

He had a number of knives with him.

He implicated three other boys and Smith, now a ward of juvenile court, was apprehended. Smith readily admitted robbing the store. He said the boys climbed to the roof and went through a window onto the second floor of the building. They then went down the rope of the elevator shaft and into the store.

A hurried investigation disclosed that 30 knives were stolen, including one hunting knife, a wrist watch, an open face watch, .22 caliber rifle, 15 boxes of .22 cartridges and 53 cents from the cash register. A number of the knives have been recovered by McCrady and the other stolen goods is expected to be found in the possession of the other two youths.

The total valuation of the articles is estimated at between $50 and $60 by D. E. McBride, manager of the store. None of the store force knew of the robbery until McCrady informed them.

Young Smith has been in the hands of juvenile authorities numerous times.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—The high tide of emotion which swept the French capital engulfed in its whirling center today pretty little Mary Coste, blue-eyed Georgian princess and wife of Captain Dieudonne Coste, and Mme. Bellonte, charming English wife of Maurice Bellonte.

"Merci, merci," murmured Mme. Bellonte repeatedly as hosts of friends rushed to her home to congratulate her. "It is simply too wonderful." She met and married Bellonte while he was a mechanic on the Paris-Croydon line. The couple has one small daughter.

Blue-eyed Mme. Coste, was overcome with joy.

"I am so proud of my husband," she wept. "Of course I have always had great confidence in him and knew he would succeed.

"I have always wanted to see the United States, and now, naturally, I am going. I will be there only a week as I have a motion picture contract to fill here. Then I am going back again. My husband will be there five months on a tour through the country."

PARIS GOES WILD

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Paris was in a holiday mood today, vibrant with festive gayety after its display of frenzied joy over the feat of Coste and Bellonte in flying for the first time in history the distance from here to New York without a stop or mishap.

Frenchmen and tourists paraded the boulevards arm in arm, tiny tricolors and miniature stars and stripes as plentifully evident in button holes and hatbands as were the larger drapeaus flapping lazily in the breeze on buildings and streets. The sidewalk cafes were crowded, with men and women vociferously toasting the gallant fliers.

Down the boulevards paraded the military bands, playing "La Marseillaise" and "The Star Spangled Banner" with an enthusiasm that refused to be dampened by continued marching and jostling from the pressing throngs.

The French government lost no time in formally honoring the nation's greatest hero by declaring he would shortly be made commander of the Legion of Honor.

Outstanding in achievement too, perhaps, was the fact that for the first time the end of a spectacular transatlantic flight was audibly reported to the vast audience from the landing field even as the plane touched ground.

From Curtiss field in New York, across a space of more than 3,000 miles, came a radio voice extremely familiar to American tourists—that of Graham MacNamee.

"Yes-sir! Ther-r-re he comes—down the field, taxi-ing along—he has landed!"

"WE HAVE ARRIVED"

The French translation which followed from the field was almost lost in a tremendous burst of cheers.

"We have arrived, after a flight of considerable difficulty," Coste declared in a radio broadcast shortly after arrival. "Needless to say we are happy to have arrived."

Bellonte, who lets Coste do the talking, also spoke a few words over the radio.

"We're happy to be here," he said. "It is a splendid reception we have been accorded, and we are grateful to the American people."

The words of both men were broadcast to France by a special radio hook-up.

HUMAN OUTLETS

MAN has three outlets, says Dr. Eugene Lyman Fiske of the Life Extension Institute. They are, intoxication, love and work He adds:

"The chief American outlet is work. Love is a good check on both intoxication and work, and I believe it is not a bad idea to mix the three evenly."

Maybe the doctor is joking. At any rate, he seems to have overlooked a fourth outlet, which makes a pretty fair substitute for both work and intoxication. That is play or sport.

We evidently need more stress on that, of as Dr. Fiske says, our masculine "danger line" has now dropped to 38. Because a lot of us don't play enough before that age, we're not able to play afterward.

AIR LIMITATION

TWO admirals, one American and one British, have told the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., that the rules of aerial warfare must be modified.

That is no news, but will stand a good deal of repetition. We have limited battleships, cruisers and submarines, but the powers are still free to do about as they please in the air. For naval competition we substitute airship competition.

There may be a race of air fleets at any time. That would be costly and dangerous in itself, and would undo the progress made in regulating other war craft.

* * *

Speaking of Dr. E. L. Fiske's three human outlets, intoxication, work and love, didn't we once read a book by Dr. Richard Cabot on what men live by and didn't that doctor say they lived by four things, work, play, love and religion.

REAL ESTATE

OVER-ALLOTING is one of the causes of the real estate depression say the realtors nowadays. An effort is going to be made all over the country to keep subdividing "somewhere in line with probable ability of the population to absorb and improve the property." There is a sound and interesting suggestion for improving the real estate market of the future.

When any great improvement is proposed, such as a bridge or pavement opening up hitherto inaccessible property, people are apt to rush in and buy land thinking they will get there before the boom which is sure to come, making a lot of money through their foresight. If they are people whose living will not be hampered by the expense of carrying that property indefinitely, probably their investment will bring large returns in the long run. But only too often they are persons who need to get their money back in a short time, and who are in trouble if they have to carry the land very long.

A boom of that kind never comes as soon as the optimists think it will. There's a little flurry at the beginning, and then the land settles down to a long wait. There are assessments to be paid for the paving, sidewalks, sewers and water. Pretty often there is a mortgage, with its never-ceasing interest. Very likely a bank loan has to be added to carry the interest and taxes while waiting for buyers.

That's the kind of thing that makes land-owners wail that there are, of course, occasional miracles, or apparent miracles, in real estate as in anything else. RELIEVING ONE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

"The SEA BRIDE" By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

THE ROMANCE OF AN EVENTFUL WHALING CRUISE

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

FAITH KILCUP had visions of a happy married life with Noll Wing, captain of the whaler, Sally Sims, but dissipation had changed him from a strong master to a complaining, old man, constantly gripped by the fear of revenge for having kicked out the eye of Mauger, one of the crew. Dan'l Tobey, a mate, is in love with Faith. When the Sally Sims stops at an island, Faith meets an ex-sailor, named Brander, who joins Noll's crew Dan'l is jealous of Brander, and also instills in Faith's brother, Roy, a dislike of him. When Noll rebukes Brander for assisting Mauger, Brander's pluck in defying him wins Noll's admiration. Later in a battle with a whale, the first mate loses his life. Dan'l fills the vacancy. Brander is made fourth mate. The enmity between Dan'l and Brander grows. Faith rebukes Dan'l for saying Noll is master in name only. He is about to sweep her into his arms when Brander interrupts. Later, Dan'l calls Noll's attention to Brander talking with the crew. Mauger's devotion to Brander arouses Noll's suspicions.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIII.

ON the twenty-fifth day after the death of Mr. Ham, at about ten o'clock on a warm and lazy morning, the man at the foremost head gave tongue to the long hail of the whale fisheries:

"Blo-o-o-o-w! Ah-h-h-h-h blo-o-o-o-w!"

The droning cry swept down through the singing rigging, swept the decks of the Sally, penetrated into the fo'c's'le, dropped into the cabin, and brought Dan'l Tobey and Noll Wing from sleep to the deck. Faith was already there, sewing in her rocking-chair aft by the wheel. When Dan'l reached the deck he saw her standing with her sewing gathered in her hands, the gold thimble gleaming on her middle finger, watching Brander. Brander was half-way up the main rigging, his glass leveled to the southward.

"Where away?" Noll Wing bellowed to the masthead man.

The man swept a hand to point. Noll climbed up toward Brander, shouting to Mr. Tobey to bring the Sally around toward where the whale had been sighted. The men from the mastheads and the fo'c's'le and all about the deck jumped to their places at the boats to await the command to lower. Brander took the glass from his eye as Noll's weight pulled at the rigging below him, and looked down at the captain, and started to speak, then he changed his mind and waved, glass in hand, while Noll scrutinized the far horizon.

Noll saw a black speck there, and focused his glass and stared. He waited for [illegible] hour—watched for [illegible] None came. The [illegible] to [illegible] a [illegible] on the swell. He [illegible] a spout?" he [illegible] head.

Brander dropped lightly after him. Noll stamped past the men at their stations by the boats till he came to Dan'l Tobey.

"Only a dead whale," he told Dan'l. "Let it be."

Brander, at Noll's heels, asked: "Do we lower?"

Noll shook his head.

"No," he said sharply.

The disappointment, coming on the heels of the hope that had been roused, had made him fretful and angry.

The disappointment, coming on the heels of the hope that had been roused, had made him fretful and angry.

"I was thinking——" Brander began.

Noll turned on him querulously. "Some ships have truck with their first cries of disgust before the slowly drifting air brought the odor aft. Five minutes later it had engulfed the ship, penetrated even into the cabin. Noll got a whiff of it; he stuck his head up out of the companion and bellowed:

"Mr. Tobey, get the Sally out o' range of that!"

"Not a breath of wind, sir," Dan'l replied. He went toward the companion as Noll stepped out on deck; and he grinned with malicious inspiration. "Mr. Brander likes the smell of it, sir. Why not send him off to tow it out of range?"

Noll nodded fretfully.

"All right, all right! Send him!"

When Dan'l gave the order, Brander assented briskly.

"I'll take a boarding-knife with me, if you don't object, sir," he said.

Dan'l chuckled. He was enjoying himself hugely.

"I'd suggest a clothes-pin, Mr. Brander," he said.

Circleville-Twp Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding

Fifty years ago on Aug. 31 William E Norris and Ida P. Ritchart, a popular young couple of Ross-co, were married by Rev. William McAdow at the Methodist parsonage in Chillicothe.

A gay wedding supper followed, and the feature of the supper was a beautiful wedding cake, baked by the bride's mother. On this cake, in delicious frosting, were the letters "Norris."

Experiencing all the struggles of farming in those days, holding dutifully to the task ahead of them, and at the same time keeping abreast of the world's rapid modernization, Mr. and Mrs Norris, hale and happy, became successful and respected residents of Pickaway-co 27 years ago.

And last Sunday, surrounded by a throng of children, grandchildren, other relatives and friends, Mr and Mrs. Norris celebrated their golden wedding at their home in Circleville-twp.

Of course there was a dinner. Eighteen cakes graced the table, and one of them was a replica of the wedding cake so proudly prepared by the bride's mother of 50 years ago.

During the afternoon music was furnished by the Ashville trio, while the older folk rolled back the years, discussing the joys and griefs of days gone by.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris were showered with gifts, including a purse of $52 in gold.

Among those present was Mrs. Charles Reed, of Columbus, a sister of Mrs. Norris who attended the wedding in Chillicothe. Others present were:

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Boardman and daughter Betty, Clarence E. Norris and children Eugene, Mary Marjorie and Maxine, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Thomas and children William, Clarence, Robert, Louise and Velma, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Leist and daughter Leona, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Hoffman and daughter Grace, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Norris and children Annabel, Naoma and Evelyn, Mr. and Mrs Paul Gearhart and children, Fred Myron and Paul Wendell, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Glick and son David, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanley and son Paul Jay, Mr. and Mrs. George Pabst and grandson Richard; Mr. and Mrs. Gershon Newton, Mr. and Mrs. B.F.
